

Documentation FAQ

For cPanel & WHM version 11.50

My question does not have a FAQ entry, what should I do?

Can I copy parts of the cPanel documentation from the cPanel site and use it on my site to help my clients?

What if I do not see documentation about a specific feature?

My question does not have a FAQ entry, what should I do?

If you need immediate assistance, contact your web host for support. If you are a direct license holder or cPanel Partner, you can open a support ticket.

Can I copy parts of the cPanel documentation from the cPanel site and use it on my site to help my clients?

You may copy parts of the cPanel documentation for use on your site as long as you meet the following requirements:

1. Credit the documentation as the property of cPanel.
2. Make no changes to the content of the documents.
3. Maintain a current license with cPanel.

What if I do not see documentation about a specific feature?

Documentation for new features may lag behind the latest version of cPanel. If you cannot find information about the feature on our documentation page, it is likely that the feature is new and the documentation has not been released yet.

Check our site periodically for new documentation.
